Missouri and Illinois Bounty Lands

THE subscriber has now for sale a number of the most valuable tracts, in both of those rich and improving bodies of lands, and can supply applicants with any number they may wish, and in any part of either territory. Every person who visits the Western Country, particularly those who intend settling there, should take with them a few quarter sections of those lands; every man who has a young and growing family, and can spare a few hundred dollars, should not miss the present opportunity of getting some of those lands; as it will insure to his children a greater certainty than any other investment he can possibly make for their benefit.—From the immense emigration to both Illinois and Missouri, particularly to the military lands, it is certain there must be a great rise in the price very soon, and those who miss the present opportunity, will never again have a chance to do so well. The patents will be sold very low, for cash, good notes or bonds at short dates, or bank stock in the Central Bank of Georgetown and Washington, and the Farmers and Mechanics' Bank of Georgetown. As I am a large dealer in Military Bounty Lands, I can supply any number that may be required.

Please to apply at my Exchange Banking House, Bridge-street Georgetown.

WEDNESDAY, OCTOBER 13, 1819.

The Baltimore papers inform that the sudden change of weather, from warm to cold, has very perceptibly checked the malignant fever at the Point. It will be seen by a reference to the report of the Secretary of the Coffee House, in yesterday's Gazette, that the mercury fell from 76 to 45 degrees in the 24 hours ending Sunday afternoon. It is very seldom that the temperature of the air changes so sensibly.

AN INFAMOUS SCOUNDREL.

Three hundred dollars reward are offered for the apprehension of John Alridge, a woolen manufacturer, who absconded from Madison Factory, near Newport, Del. on the 30th ult. taking with him about 1500 dollars worth of goods belonging to private individuals, and leaving behind him debts, in all, amounting to not less than 2000 dollars. He also left behind, at the establishment, five poor families, to whom he was much in arrears; and to whom he promised pay upon his return, and who are now thrown idle, in an almost starving condition. The said Alridge is about the common size, 5 feet 10 inches in height; black hair; he has a blemish in his right eye, that he cannot see with, though not perceivable without particular notice. He went off in company with two other characters, Isaac Clark, alias Collings, and John Taylor, all Englishmen.—Clark, alias Collings, is about the same in height, but much lustier; Taylor is about six feet and large in proportion; an awkward, uncouth looking fellow; both from Lancashire, England. Fifty Dollars will be paid for the apprehension of either of them.

The said Alridge had rented the establishment of Mr. Robert Phillips, who is the principal sufferer, and by whom the reward is offered.

The Newmarket races, near New-York, commenced yesterday. It is expected that the lovers of this kind of sport will be more highly gratified than they have been for a number of years. Eleven of the most celebrated horses on the continent (several from Virginia,) were entered a week previous.

FECUNDITY.

The wife of Simeon Clough, of North Yarmouth, was in one hour made the mother of three fine children—a boy weighing 7½ lbs.—one girl 6¼—the other 5¼—making in all 19½ lbs. The children are perfectly healthy. Portland Gaz.

While editors in other parts boast of the prolific virtues of their females, let us not forget Alexandria. In the course of one week, not long since, twins were born in four families, at the upper part of the town, and residing within an eighth of a mile from each other.

DISTRESSING SHIPWRECK.

Capt. Atwood, late of brig Brutus, of Castine, from Cape Cod, has arrived in Boston. The brig went ashore on Orleans beach, September 20, at noon, in a heavy gale, having lost both topmasts a few hours before. She went entirely to pieces in half an hour, after she struck, and nothing has been saved belonging to the vessel, except two anchors and the small boat. She had 33 passengers on board, who saved some of their effects—twelve persons perished in attempting to reach the shore; they were foreign emigrants and persons from Nova Scotia.

When the vessel first went on shore, a rope was made fast to a spar, which being thrown overboard, drifted on shore, and was secured by the people on the beach; by this means, all of the crew and passengers who were saved (except one young lady, who drifted into the surf, on the foremast, and was bro't on shore,) got safe to land. Ibid.

FOREIGN EXTRACTS

We this day continue our extracts from our London papers received yesterday by the Albion. We give, among other articles, the final examination of Hunt and his associates. They were bailed and bound over for trial on the charge of a high misdemeanor.

A prosecution, it will be seen, is instituted by government against Sir Francis Burdett for a seditious letter. The letter itself, together with a note from Sir Francis, to Lord Sidmouth, avowing himself the author, will be found among our selections.

The latest Paris dates announce that Count Daru is to be appointed minister of war in the room of Marshal St. Cyr, whose state of ill health compels him to retire.

MANCHESTER MEETING.

New Bayley Court House, Manchester,
Friday, August 27.

Mr. Hunt, and his fellow prisoners, it was understood, were to be brought up for a final examination this day. In consequence there was great anxiety in the public to be present. A crowd gathered around the gates of the prison, and it became necessary to restrain a sudden rush into the court. Constables and military were actively employed for the purpose. At length the magistrates presented themselves on the bench, and Mr. Marriott directed the gates to be opened. The court was immediately filled to excess. The proceedings occupied between four and five hours.

The prisoners, Henry Hunt, Joseph Johnson, J. T. Saxton, John Knight, James Moorhouse, Samuel Bamford, Joseph Healy, Geo. Swift, Thomas Taylor, Robert Wilde, and Elizabeth Gaunt, were brought up together.—Elizabeth Gaunt was much agitated, and not able to stand at the bar; she was placed in a chair behind. Moorehouse kissed his hand to the people behind, kept his white hat on, and for a short time refused to take it off. A great confusion prevailed for some time in the court. Mr. Norris was commencing to address the prisoners, when Hunt said in a peremptory tone, "I can't hear; there was more order at the meeting the other day than here."

Silence being at length obtained, Mr. Norris addressed the prisoners to the following effect: Henry Hunt, and you all severally: you have been remanded on charge of high treason; and you were informed that the whole of the evidence had been sent up to London, to be laid before the law officers of the crown, and in the mean time you were to be detained. It was not until this morning that a communication was made from government; not to me, but there is a gentleman present (Mr. Bouchier) and he attends with orders to proceed with a less charge. The charge of treason is not to be gone into at present.

Mr. Hunt. Is the charge of murder then abandoned? I understood I was remanded until the coroner's inquest had sat, and a magistrate told me I was to be tried for murder as well as treason.

Mr. Hulton, from the bench, said: I did not tell you so: but that before the charge against you would be ultimately shaped, the coroner's verdict must be known.

Moorehouse. This then turns out to be a farce.

Mr. Norris. Moorehouse, I shall feel it my duty to remand you, unless you conduct yourself properly.

Mr. Milne called over the names of the witnesses, whose written depositions he held. On putting the book into the hands of the first, Hunt desired he might be examined alone, and the rest ordered to leave the court.

Mr. Bouchier said he should not object to this.

Many questions were put by Mr. Hunt to another of the witnesses: several of which the court over-ruled. On one being objected to, he said, in a loud energetic voice—I demand it as an act of justice.

Mr. Norris. When you make a request, we understand that you make it as a demand, and as a British subject. The same attention will be paid to you as to any other, if you treat the court with respect.

Mr. Hunt. I have been told I have treated the court with disrespect. I do not wish it. It would not become me.

Mr. Hunt was examining one of the witnesses, and Mr. O. Milne put a question to him at the same time, on which Hunt expressed himself in very strong terms at the interruption. Mr Norris stopped him, and said he would allow no intimidation. To a question which Mr. Hunt put to the same witness, the witness said he did not choose to answer. Hunt to the Bench. Here's a witness does not choose to answer: what will you do?

Mr. Norris. He is not obliged to answer it.

Mr. Hunt. How are you to get at the truth?

Mr. Norris. He has made oath to it already.

Mr. Hunt put some other questions to the witness, to one of which Mr. Norris observed, you can put that on your trial; not now.

Mr. Hunt. Then you are determined to send me to trial, whatever the evidence is.

As the evidence of one of the witnesses related to Elizabeth Gaunt only, she was bro't to the front of the dock. After it was read, she stated that she was amongst the crowd at the meeting; that in the confusion some one had put her into Mr Hunt's carriage, but did not know who put her there. She had no right to be in the coach, but was put in by two persons. (from motives of humanity, it appeared) for safety; she fainted away, and when she came to herself she found she had got a blow: she threw herself afterwards into a private house, and remained there for some time, and might have got away.

Mr. Bouchier here requested she might be discharged, as the evidence was so slight; and the bench ordered her to be discharged. The chairman, Mr. Norris, then addressed her with great humanity.

Mr. Hunt. This, after twelve days' solitary confinement!

After the whole of the evidence had been read, Mr. Hunt said to the bench: may I be permitted to ask who is the prosecutor?

Mr. Norris. The crown.

Mr. Hunt. In person?

Mr. Norris. The solicitor of the treasury is here.

Mr. Hunt. Your name.

Mr. Bouchier. Bouchier.

Mr Hunt I must know the name of the prosecutor, as I may have occasion to bring an action!

Mr. Norris. Mr. Bouchier has been sent by the crown.

Mr. Hunt, I wish to know who is the responsible person, in order that if it should turn out after being eleven days confined, that I have committed no offence, some one may be made responsible.

Mr. Norris. I take it, that those who have sworn to the particular facts are in the present instance responsible.

Mr. Hunt. But is it not necessary there should be a prosecutor?

Mr. Norris. The crown prosecutes: if there be any particular prosecutor, it must be the attorney general.

Mr. Hunt then addressed the bench to the following effect:—I know that I am now addressing the same magistrates who took the first depositions against me; but after that evidence, and the amended evidence, has been read, it is for them, sitting as his majesty's justices, to administer justice. I hope, and I do not doubt, they will dismiss from their minds all prejudice, and act upon the evidence. Some witnesses say that those bodies which came from the country came in military array, but they could not explain what they meant by military array. Some say they came with sticks. One says, they were so far in military array as to have clubs at their left breasts, similar to muskets. But all agree that none of them did any act to intimidate. Can the magistrates say we should be committed on such evidence for a misdemeanor, after eleven days' confinement? is not this sufficient confinement? is not this a sufficient punishment for any offence that we may have committed? The eyes of all England are fixed upon this matter. I stand here with the conviction that I have acted rightly; but it is doubtful whether those who hear me have that conviction. The country is in a very agitated state, and will be in a more agitated state till this question is settled. Are you upon this evidence to send us back to solitary confinement? [Mr. Norris replied, No.] One of the magistrates, whom I do not now see, told me all the blood that had been shed must be set to my account. After having been remanded for treason; after having been held up to the country as a traitor, and after having been committed on that charge, and now there being no evidence offered to support it, I appeal to you to lay aside all private feelings—(Here there was applause in court.)

Mr. Norris. No tumult shall be made: if there is, I shall commit the parties guilty of it.

Mr. Hunt. There is no attempt on my part to make tumult; the man who makes any disturbance is my personal enemy.

Mr. Hunt resumed. I expected to have stood here on a much greater charge, on a charge of High Treason, and I have also been charged with murder. I submit to you there has not been one particle of evidence of these. Many of these prisoners I never saw till they came into the box. I admit that I did attend the meeting for the purpose of addressing it, considering the laws of the country allowed me. I did not consider it as a matter of pleasure, but, on the contrary, a painful duty.—Having had the honor to present to the Secretary of State remonstrances from other meetings, through him to be laid before his Royal Highness the Prince Regent, it was intended a remonstrance of a similar nature would be sent from this meeting. It was the unanimous opinion of those concerned in this meeting, that we should not imitate Birmingham. The proclamation had pronounced that object illegal; and though I did not think it at first illegal, yet, in my opinion, it was foolish.—Without three months' notice given to all the inhabitants, I, as Chairman, would not have put such a question; and it was entirely given up, even if the meeting on the 9th had been held; and we have the most respectable evidence of it, from men of as much property and respectability as any in this court. The resolutions intended to have been proposed, were lost in the late bustle. But it will be proved it was intended to convey, certainly, a most strong vote of censure on Lord Sidmouth, for refusing to present the petitions from Manchester and Stockport; and then a solemn appeal to his Royal Highness the Prince Regent, to take into consideration the distressed state of the country, and renew the connection between the people and the throne.—I shall not trust to my feelings as to what took place on dispersing the meeting; it would be much better if a great portion of that were buried in oblivion. Upon this evidence, I beg that you will not commit. Will you throw down the apple of discord for perpetual contention, and continue the people in agitation? (here the Bench interrupted him.)

Mr. Norris. Your language is now improper. What account of this you have to make must be conveyed to powers higher than ourselves. If the country were in tenfold the agitation you speak of, I and my brethren should do our duty.

Mr. Hunt resumed. I did not mean to throw out any imputation, nor ask any thing as a boon, but I demand justice; nor will I accept any favor. I certainly did ask the governor whether I might be permitted to walk in the garden, but the moment I knew Mr. Johnson had been refused by the magistrates, I would have sawed off my right hand before I would have gone into it!!!

Mr. Norris. Directions were given to a surgeon, a most respectable man, to see Mr. Johnson; and if necessary for him to walk out, that he should have permission to do so. (Johnson admitted this.)

Mr. Hunt again resumed. I must say I suffered much bodily pain from the blows of the constables and from sabres. They are visible. I scorn to tell the doctor of it. My health certainly has, by my apprehension and confinement, been preserved: the exertions I should have made to keep that meeting quiet, would have affected me for years. I have slept on a bed such as I would not have put my servants to; but, thank God, I have slept well and have suffered nothing, but from the recollections of my fellow prisoners, and the mangled creatures cut to death. I have no complaint to make against the jailor, nor of the air of the jail.

Mr. Moorhouse. As the law presumes persons innocent until convicted, I beg to say we ought to be used as well as possible, while we are kept in prison.

Mr. Norris. You may all of you have bail.

Mr. Moorhouse. When brought up here before, I was warm, and conducted myself in a way for which I am rather sorry.

Saxton briefly addressed the court, stating that a reporter from the London Times office had been apprehended and liberated, whereas he, attending in the quality of Reporter for the Manchester Observer, the most independent paper in the country, had ——— Mr. Norris interposed, and rudely told him in that strain he could not proceed.

The Magistrates then withdrew. Mr. Bouchier was shortly afterwards going towards the magistrates' room. Hunt said to him—"I hope you are not going to the magistrates unless my solicitor goes."

On the return of the magistrates, Mr. Norris said: Henry Hunt, and you all; we sent for Mr. Bouchier in order that we might again carefully peruse the depositions. It is a most painful duty to me to commit you for a conspiracy. We can, however, lay our hands on our hearts and say, "we have done our duty" As to the charge of conspiracy, though you might not have been altogether previously to the meeting, yet in the eye of the law, all those who commit separate acts, tending to one illegal object, are guilty of that crime. Coupling the two meetings together, taking into consideration the manner in which the last was assembled, with such insignia, and under such demonstrations, with the black flag, the bloody dagger, the words, equal representation or death—the coming in a threatening manner under these banners—these were a direct shewing that the overthrow of the government was unavoidably contemplated. No discussion could be had where the flag was; intimidation was its direct object. The charge now is, "that of having conspired to alter the law by force and threats." It is an illegal procedure sufficiently made out, and calls upon us imperatively to commit you for trial before a proper tribunal. It is now my painful duty to commit you to Lancaster castle. On account of the seriousness of the charge, we shall require you Hunt and Johnson, to give bail, yourselves in £1000, and two sureties in £500 each; and all the others, themselves in £500, and two sureties in £250 each.

Hunt expressed some sympathy in behalf of the young man Wild, who was poor, and would have extreme difficulty in finding bail to the amount required. Mr. Norris, in the name of the magistrates at large, replied, that they would reconsider their determination as it respected him, in consequence of such information.

The magistrates, before they finally retired from the public court, intimated to the prisoners that they should remain in the prison a reasonable time, to receive their offers of bail; which was successfully produced on the parts of Johnson and Moorhouse, who were forthwith liberated, to the extravagant enthusiasm of a vast collection of the populace, who bore Johnson away from the New Bailey, upon their shoulders, in tumultuous triumph. The other prisoners, in default of bail, were conveyed that evening to the castle of Lancaster, under escort of Mr. Nadin, his assistants, and a troop of the 15th hussars.

Hunt, in one stage of the investigation, set out upon an attempt at the vindication of Moorehouse wishing it to be understood that he had not participated in the transactions of the day in which they were said to be implicated; but his solicitor, Mr. Pearson (an intelligent looking young man, from the metropolis) advised him to desist. Mr. Pearson was very assidious, handing up suggestions to the prisoners, and taking minutes of whatever transpired throughout the examinations.

Hunt (if we may be allowed the term) cross-examined each of the witnesses, if not with ingenuity and legal acuteness, at least with sufficient presence of mind and self-possession; the irrelevancy and occasional insolence of many of his interrogatories prompted Mr. Norris, particularly, and the other magistrates very frequently, to interfere, and in dignified and feeling language, admonish him upon the unnecessary and often improper course he was pursuing, and to impress upon him, that the bench would strictly protect the witnesses in the fair and conscientious development of their respective evidence.

Mr. Hunt and the other prisoners from Manchester, arrived at Lancaster Castle, about five o'clock on Saturday morning. In the course of the day, two individuals, (Messieurs Chapman and Grundy) who had been received as bail for Hunt and Knight, at the New Bailey, Manchester, and carried from thence an order for their liberation, reached the county town; and about half past nine in the evening they were at large. About ten o'clock the next day, they and a third person set out from the King's Arms Inn, in a chaise, on their return to Manchester, and passed the night at Bolton. Before his departure, Hunt visited the Castle, to bid his companions farewell, and was cheered by the debtors as he passed through their yard. On the following morning, (Monday) they proceeded towards Manchester, drawn a distance more than three miles by both men and women, and between twelve and one, they made another grand entre through the centre of the town, in the following order: First, Chapman, on horseback; then Hunt and Knight, in a chaise, drawn by the populace; next came a gig, which held Sir C. Wolseley and Johnson, and to which were also yoked a proper complement of human steeds; finally, a gig with a person in it unknown, and the horses which had been superseded by the two-legged volunteers. They were attended by a great crowd of their humble admirers, who whilst they halted for a short time opposite the exchange, loudly cheered their darling Orators. Hunt rose, and thrusting his head and white hat out of the chaise, whirled it round several times, in marked exultation, as he uniformly does when he passes by that edifice. We believe Hunt sojourns with his friend Johnson, at his chateau, in Smedley-lane. Rumor, with her busy tongue, hints at another meeting in the space of a fortnight.

Liverpool, September 4.

Extract of a letter from Lancaster, dated 3d September, received here yesterday morning.

"Mr. Hunt is here; and this morning moved the judge on the crown side (Baron Wood) for an order to remove such of the grand jury as were related to the Manchester magistrates against whom he meant to prefer bills of indictment for cutting and stabbing, &c. The judge said he could not dismiss any of the grand jury, but had no doubt that when such bills were presented, such of the grand jury as were so situated would retire; and Mr. Bootle Wilbraham said, he, for one, should. The judge, in his charge, told the grand jury, that if any such bills were so presented, and supported even by doubtful evidence, it was their duty to find the bills."

London, September 1.

Waddington, who was taken up for parading Kennington Common, on the 23d ult. with a seditious placard, was tried yesterday, at the Surrey Sessions. The man appeared to be insane. As a part of his defence, he took out a pocket bible, and read several chapters about the iniquity of bad advisers, and the torments of the damned. The Jury acquitted him. [Courier.

A mail from Hamburgh arrived this morning. Papers to the 24th ult. contain no intelligence of any interest. An article dated Copenhagen, Aug. 21, says, "the further deterioration of the course of exchange excites here general alarm and despondency.—We are not able to explain the reason of it."

Frankfort, August 20.

It is stated from Carlsbad, that the ministers assembled there, have concerted the means of generalizing the measures proper to restrain our political writers. It is said that a project has been already agreed upon with regard particularly to newspapers, which will much restrain the freedom of publishing opinions. The project will be sent by the different courts to their ministers at the diet, which will enact a general law upon the subject.

The accounts of the diabolical conduct of Lord Byron to his wife, floating on a general tide of scandal, were not generally in this country considered worthy of credit; but the worst of them has recently been mentioned on an authority that cannot well be distrusted.—After the marriage ceremony, and when the parties were seated in the carriage, Lord Byron observing the tears usually shed on leaving the paternal mansion filling his lady's eyes, said, "Spare your tears, lady Byron, you shall soon have better cause to cry. I married you not out of love, but hatred. You once dared to refuse me; and I have linked myself with you for the sake of revenge." And yet this man, whose love was turned into hatred because of a refusal, seeks refuge among the mountains of Switzerland, to avoid the wickedness of his fellow creatures! [Glasgow paper.

It may be curious to remark the inroads which the sea is constantly making on various parts of the eastern coast of this country. In 1786, the church of Mapleton was distant from the cliff 28 chains 71 links. In 1801, 26 chains 95 links; so that within the above period, the land has lost 31½ yards. [Ibid.

PIOUS PROCESSION.

A letter from Vienna, dated the 11th inst. says, the remarkable procession which goes every year in pilgrimage to Maria Zelle, set off this morning—it was more numerous than ever. The total amount of the pious souls, who have undertaken this painful journey, may be stated as much beyond 12,000.

The Suffragan Bishop gave them his benediction; and if the weather be propitious they will be followed by numbers of all classes, from the several provinces through which they have to pass, who are anxious to participate in the plenary indulgence which is granted to the penitent souls.

PROSECUTION OF SIR F. BURDETT.

A message was on Wednesday week sent to Mr. Brooks, of the Strand, the Secretary of the Westminister Committee, desiring his immediate attendance at the Office of the Home Department. Mr. Brooks accordingly repaired thither, and was introduced into a room, where he found Lord Sidmouth, the Attorney General, the Chancellor of the Exchequer, and some other Members of the Administration, seated, in consultation. The attorney general. "Mr Brooks, we have sent for you in consequence of a letter which has appeared in the public Papers, as to the late transactions at Manchester, signed 'Francis Burdett.' Was it to you that letter was addressed?"—Mr. Brooks. 'Yes'—Attorney General. "Have you got the original letter?"——Mr Brooks, "May I be permitted to ask the purpose of the inquiry?"—Attorney General. "The letter is a seditious libel; and our purpose is to prosecute it. Will you give it up to us?"——Mr. Brooks "I am not at the present moment prepared to say whether I will or not. I should like a little time to advise on the subject." The Counsel consulted together. The Attorney General. "Will you be prepared to give an answer to morrow?——Mr. Brooks. "I should like to have till Friday."—Attorney General.——"Well; on Friday Mr. Brooks, we shall expect your answer." Mr. Brooks then withdrew. Mr Brooks having written to Sir F. Burdett an account of the proceedings of the Privy Council, with regard to his letter to the Electors of Westminister, the Baron has come forward in the most candid and manly way, and avowed himself the author. On Monday the Secretary of State received the following letter:

Cattesbrook, Aug. 28, 1819.

"My lord—Hearing your lordship has applied to the gentlemen through whose hands my Address to the Electors of Westminster was transmitted to the Newspapers, to give up the author, and had, at the same time, intimated that a refusal would subject him, as well as the Editors of the Papers, to a Ministerial prosecution, I take the liberty, in order to save your lordship further trouble, and also the gentlemen above-mentioned an unjust prosecution, to inform your lordship, that I am the author of the Address in question; and moreover, to assure your lordship, that although penned in an hurry, and under the influence of strongly-excited feelings, I can discover nothing in it, on re perusal, unbecoming the character of an honest man and an Englishman.—I remain your lordship's most obedient and very humble servant,

"FRANCIS BURDETT."

"Lord Viscount Sidmouth."

Sir Francis Burdett's Address to the Electors of Westminster.

Gentlemen---On reading the newspapers this morning, having arrived late yesterday evening, I was filled with shame, grief and indignation, at the account of the blood spilt at Manchester. THIS, then, is the answer of the boroughmongers, to the petitioning people, THIS is the practical proof of standing in no need of reform? -these the practical blessings of our glorious boroughmonger domination?---this, the use of a standing army in time of peace? It seems our fathers were not such fools as some would make us believe, in opposing the establishment of a standing army, and sending King William's Guards out of the country. Yet would to Heaven they had been Dutchmen, or Switzers, or Hessians, or Hanoverians, or any thing rather than Englishmen, who have done such deeds! What! kill men unarmed! unresisting! and, gracious God! WOMEN too, disfigured, maimed, cut down and trampled upon by DRAGOONS.—Is this ENGLAND? This a CHRISTIAN LAND? A LAND OF FREEDOM! Can such things be and pass by us like a summer cloud unheeded? Forbid it every drop of English blood, in every vein! that does not proclaim its owner bastard. Will the gentlemen of England support, or wink, at such proceedings? they have a great stake in their country. They hold great estates, and they are bound in duty, and in honor, to consider them as retaining fees on the part of their country, for upholding its rights and liberties. Surely they will at length awake! and find they have duties to perform! they never can stand tamely by, as lookers on, while bloody Neroes rip open their mother's womb! They must join the general voice; loudly demanding justice and redress; and head public meetings throughout the United Kingdom, to put a stop, in its commencement, to a reign of terror and of blood; to afford consolation as far as it can be afforded, and legal redress to the widows and orphans mutilated victims of this unparalleled and barbarous outrage. For this purpose I propose that a meeting should be called in Westminster, which the gentlemen of the committee will arrange, and whose summons I will hold myself in readiness to attend—Whether the penalty of our meeting will be death, by military execution, I know not; but this I know, a man can die but once; and never better than in vindicating the laws and liberties of his country.

Excuse this hasty address. I can scarcely tell what I have written. It may be a libel; or the Attorney General may call it so—just as he pleases. When the seven bishops were tried for a libel, the army of James the Second encamped on Hounslow Heath, for supporting arbitrary power, gave three cheers on hearing of their aquittal; the King, startled at the noise, asked "what's that?" "Nothing Sir?" was the answer, "but the soldiers shouting at the acquittal of the 7 bishops." "Do you call that nothing?" replied the misgiving tyrant; and shortly after abdicated the government. 'Tis true, James could not inflict the torture on his soldiers! could not tear the living flesh from their bones with a cat of nine tails! —could not then flay them alive?—Be this as it may, our duty is to meet!—and "England expects every man to do his duty!"

I remain Gentlemen,
Most truly and faithfully,
Your most obedient servant,
F. BURDETT.

Extract of a letter from a commercial house in Leeds, to their correspondent in New-York, dated 1st September, 1819.

"You will no doubt see many alarming reports in our newspapers respecting the public meetings in this country. These accounts are greatly exaggerated, but the cause of such assemblies is too certain and too true. They arise principally from the depressed state of trade, and the overwhelming force of taxes and poor rates. Persons, once independent, find their means daily diminishing, and themselves obliged to leave the country. Emigration is the main subject of discourse and attention. This town has usually been very busy at this season of the year, but there is now scarcely any thing doing; and it is said that there has not been so little cloth manufacturing for the last twenty years, as at this time. It is surprising to see the number of manufacturers that are now out of employment. Our prospects for the approaching winter are truly appalling."

One Hundred Dollars Reward

RAN AWAY, on the 20th September last, from the subscriber, living near Battletown, in Frederick county, Virginia, a bright Muletto Girl, named LAVINIA, but she will in all probability change her name. She is about 4 feet 3 or 4 inches high, is very likely and stoops considerably in walking. She took with her a bundle containing a variety of clothing. It has been ascertained that she is endeavoring to make her way to Philadelphia, Alexandria and Baltimore. The above reward will be given for apprehending the said mulatto girl and bringing her home or lodging her in jail so that I get her again.

Drifted or was Stolen,

FROM my landing on the Potomac, about one mile from Maryland Point, on Tuesday night, the 28th September, a small northern built YAWL BOAT, quite new, black gunwales; the seats, and her inside, as low as the seats, of a leaden color, and, I think, her gunwales on the outside of a cream color below them, for a short distance, of a leaden color; her bottom, both within and without, turpentine or varnish. I purchased her about the 22d or 23d of July of Mr. E. Corning, Alexandria. I will give five dollars for the boat alone, if brought home uninjured—and if stolen I will give ten dollars for the boat and conviction of the thief.

English, Mercantile & Mathematical Academy,

Columbus Street.

THE subscriber most respectfully informs the citizens of Alexandria, that his EVENING TUITION will commence at his School Room in Columbus-street, on Monday the 4th inst. To say more on the occasion would be useless; the proofs the public have received of his abilities, attention, and the general improvement of his pupils, are sufficient. As the school will be limited to twenty, and a number having already applied, those who wish to avail themselves of the opportunity would do well to make immediate application, and none need, except persons of respectable character.

Correct Information.

THE stock advertised for sale by the Mechanics' Bank as standing in our name, is not our property. Our stock note thereon has been continued, under heavy and disproportioned curtailments, ever since March 1818, for the use of the real owner, a respectable mechanic of this place, because he could not obtain leave, upon a transfer, to substitute his stock note for ours. We have no interest in said stock beyond the sum that will retire the said stock note, and we do not think it proper to advance more money than we have done for curtailments.

Situation Wanted.

THE advertiser, (a native of England) who has had the honor to instruct adult pupils, as well as youth of both sexes, in Stenography, the English and French Languages, Elocution, Writing, Arithmetic, Geography &c is desirous of obtaining immediate employment as a private teacher, assistant in a respectable academy, or master of a school in the country.

Possessing the most ample testimonials in favor of his competency as a teacher, the advertiser wishes not to shrink from any investigation, that may be deemed requisite, in order to ascertain the validity of his pretensions, and the extent of his acquirements. Enquire (if by letter, post paid) of Mr. Davis the editor of this paper.

N. B. Law students and other professional gentlemen may acquire a complete knowledge of the advertiser's system of Stenography in the course of twelve lessons. Ladies or gentlemen desirous of private instruction may be attended at their own houses, and at their own time. October 9

ROMULUS RIGGS.

S. Drew, Merchant Tailor,

Removed from Fairfax-street to the corner of King and Columbus streets, and his prices falling,

RESPECTFULLY acquaints his customers and the citizens in general that he has removed as above, where he will study to give satisfaction. He has by him a small but well assorted stock of goods, which will be found on inspection to be of the best quality, the whole of which he wishes to sell low for cash, and as further inducements to purchasers he offers to cut out any goods, bought of him to any size or pattern gratis.

S. Drew aware, of the advantage a ready money business has over one where long credit is given, thinks that a distinction ought to be made in the prices in each case: and as the price of provisions are low at present, he is glad to be able to announce to those customers who will feel disposed to pay him ready money for his work, that he will reduce the price of making to them according to the present journeymen's wages; and to prevent any supposed imposition on the one hand or disatisfaction on the other he is willing to be governed by the printed regulations of prices by which the journeymen are paid in Alexandria.

N. B. Bread, flour, beef, groceries, liquors or any thing valuable taken in exchange for clothes.

S. Drew has this day opened a tavern in the same house, where he has laid in a supply of Philadelphia and the district porter and ale, together with liquors of the best quality, and he feels confident that he shall be able to give satisfaction to all who will please to favor him with a call.—He is fitting up his house for the accommodation of boarders, travellers, &c. and from its central situation, good beds and stabling, together with other requisites, he presumes that it will be found a convenient establishment.

100 Dollars Reward.

RAN AWAY on the 25th of April last, a man called NED, formerly the property of Mr. Fitzhugh, of Fairfax, and by him sold to Hepburn & Dundas. He had on when he went away an old country blue and white cloth coat, and kersey trowsers—his right hand in a sling, in consequence of the kick of a horse. Ned is a stupid looking fellow, and hesitates very much when he speaks. I will give fifty dollars if apprehended in the District, or the above reward for apprehending him out of the District, so that I get him again.

Was Committed,

TO the jail for the county of Alexandria on the 3d inst. as a runaway, a negro man called BEN HENDERSON, supposed to be the property of George Thornton, of King George county. The said negro is about 50 years of age; 5 feet 6 inches high; bald head; and a shoemaker by trade. The owner is desired to come prove property, pay charges, and take him away, otherwise he will be disposed of as the law directs.

ANDW. ROUNSAVELL,

september 8 Jailor.

100 Dollars Reward.

RAN away on the 28th of April, from the farm of the subscriber, in Dogue Neck, Fairfax Co. Virginia, negro HARRY, aged about twenty three years, about five feet ten inches high, very black, well built, has a considerable impediment in his speech, when spoken to evinces much confusion, and replies almost unintelligibly: had on when he left home, a much worn suit of domestic cloth. I have every reason to believe that he is endeavoring to pass for a free man, and as such went off in some of the bay craft during the late fishing season. All masters of vessels are forewarned from harboring or taking into their employ said negro, under penalty of having the law rigidly enforced against them. I will give twenty dollars, if taken in the county of Fairfax, or district of Columbia; if beyond that distance, the above reward, provided he is secured in jail so that I get him again. WM. MASON.

Charles County, Md. June 1.

The editors of the National Intelligencer and Baltimore Federal Gazette will insert the above until forbid, and send their accounts to Port Tobacco for payment.

June 11 H

100 Dollars Reward.

I WILL give the above reward to any person who will return to my possession, negro LAWRENCE, who assumes the sirname of FENWICK. This fellow left my farm, on the Wicomico river, in Charles county, Md. on the 6th July, in consequence of his own outrageous conduct towards my overseer. He is a negro of a fine erect figure, good features, asmooth black skin, rather above the middle stature, of a youthful appearance for one of thirty years of age, and of great plausibility and natural smartness. His ears grow remarkably close to his head, and on the inside of his lower lip he has a white mark or spot. I purchased him 4 years ago of the estate of Mrs. P. H. Courts, of this county. I am led (by circumstances which have come to my knowledge since he absconded,) to believe that he will endeavor to make his way to King George county, Va.; should he not take this route, he will probably be met with in the District of Columbia, or in the upper counties of this state, on his way to Pennsylvania. I apprehend he will change his name, and if committed to jail, refuse to state to whom he belongs, as the misconduct which preceded his departure, & his absconding, have all appeared since to have been premeditated. He took all his clothes with him, of which he had a large number; among them—a new bearskin over-coat, a long close-bodied blue coat, a pair of striped jean pantaloons, one or more white waistcoats, besides many articles of coarse cloathing; these, however, he will probably exchange, or sell them for cash to defray his travelling expenses.

I will give the above reward to any person who will bring him home to me, or FIFTY DOLLARS if confined in jail, and notice given me, so that I recover him.—Should he be taken out of the state, I will also pay all reasonable costs and charges which may attend the bringing him home.

PROSPECTUS

Of a new periodical work to be published in the city of Washington, entitled the Washington Theological REPERTORY.

EDITORS: Rev. Wm Hawley, Washington, Rev. Wm. H. Wilmer, Alexandria, Rev. Oliver Norris, Alexandria, Rev Reuel Keith, Georgetown.

Assisted by several other literary gentlemen of the Protestant Episcopal Church.

IF any apology were necessary for this undertaking, it may be found in the fact, that there is no publication on a similar plan, in all that section of our country lying south of New-York, and but one in the whole of the United States. It has been matter of equal surprize and regret, that the Episcopal Church should be so far behind other Christian denominations, in similar efforts to disseminate the principles of religion and piety. At a period like the present, when the Lord is preparing his way on earth, by the most remarkable efforts of human agency, and the most wonderful operations of his providence and grace—when we perceive in every part of Christendom, a praise-worthy emulation to share in the glorious work of filling the earth with the knowledge of the only true God, and his Son Jesus Christ; it would seem criminal for any to withhold their exertions, however feeble, in the great enterprize of human happiness and salvation. The editors have, therefore, felt it their duty to make this humble effort to supply this acknowledged deficiency on the part of the church in this section of the country, and to bear their share in the common exertions of Christians to promote the Redeemer's Kingdom. And having obtained the services of a gentleman, in whose talents and principles they have confidence, whose time will be wholly devoted to the superintendence of the work, they feel encouraged to solicit the patronage of the public.

The publication will be conducted under the immediate inspection and control of the above named editors, who will form a committee to review every article intended for publication. The principles upon which it will be conducted are those of the bible, as illustrated in the articles, Liturgy and Homilies of the Protestant Episcopal Church. As members of this church the editors will feel bound to support the Apostolical character of her institutions, the pious tendency of her rites and ceremonies, and the evangelical nature of her doctrines. But in these, and all other discussions, they hope never to loose sight of that great law of charity which teaches us to "preserve the unity of the spirit in the bond of peace."

Acting upon those catholic principles, so long and so successively pursued by "The Christian Observer," their chief object will be to inculcate sound theological knowledge, and to delineate and recommend pure and vital religion. They trust therefore, that while the members of every Christian denomination may find something edifying and instructive, none will discover any just cause for offence in the pages of this work. General subjects of biblical criticism, practical illustrations of scriptural truth, the biography of illustrious persons, evidences of the truth of revelation, essays on the history and polity of the church, reviews of interesting publications, religious, literary and philosophical intelligence—in short, whatever is connected with the promotion of religion, humanity and literature, will find a place in this repository.

The testimony of experience supersedes the necessity of dwelling on the advantages of a periodical publication on the plan proposed. Its obvious tendency will be to render the various departments of religious knowledge more easy and accessible, and give a more ready currency and wider circulation, to those great truths which involve the present welfare and future destiny of man.

It will tend powerfully to stimulate the exertions of the editors, and console them under the difficulties attendant on the prosecution of this work, amidst many other avocations, should it prove the means under the blessing of God, of enriching any of its readers with the saving knowledge of Christ, and prepare them for a participation in the felicity and glory of his heavenly kingdom. With this hope they commit it into his hands, and confidently solicit their brethren of the clergy and laity to assist them in carrying into effect the objects of the undertaking.

TERMS OF THE WORK.

A volume of the Repertory shall consist of twelve numbers, of which one shall be published on the first day of every month, containing thirty-two large octavo pages, stitched in blue, and attended with a table of contents.

The paper used in the work shall be good, and the typography executed with the greatest care.

The price of a volume is two dollars payable in advance; to such as omit the advance, two dollars and fifty cents.

It is designed to enlarge the size of the work, without increasing the price, as soon as one thousand subscribers shall be obtained.

Communications and remittances may be directed to any of the editors, post paid.

Any person becoming responsible for five subscribers, shall receive a sixth copy gratis.

The first number may be expected in the month of July.
